The project for the Huzhou Club Center is part of the new “Change on - White city” residential complex, in the ancient province of Zhejiang: an exclusive club at the service of the residences, but also open to the city and its guests.

The concept is inspired by the place and its tradition, specifically by its nature, by the sinuous shape of the Gingko tree leaves, the ancient tree of the city whose evocative forest extends for 12.5 kilometers, and by the archetype of the fan, with its shape and characteristic ribbing.

A fluid design that functionally divides the space into three areas of activity: leisure for the ground floor, entertainment for the first, wellness for the basement.

Among the most interesting elements of the design, the creation of iconic custom designed elements, such as the spectacular triple-height glass and metal chandelier in the hall, the marble and steel reception counter, the self-standing washbasins in the bathrooms, metal monoliths interlocking on a marble top, the glass partition of the wine cellar.
