The historic Palazzo Nani becomes a 5-star hotel designed by Studio Marco Piva. The change of intended use keep intact the historical and artistic value of the property, preserving and emphasizing the original structures and floors, as well as all the frescoes, magnified with the use of light.

The reception has been deliberately placed on the noble floor, both to convey all the guests of the hotel to this beautiful space, whose frescoes have been completely restored, than to place the bar and restaurant at the main entrance, open to all the lagoon public, so to give a more social and less hotel-like perception. Everything has been studied and designed with the intention of finding a reference to the city of Venice.

The rooms, all different from each other, take up the element of the original arch of the facade and bring it inside the building.

The use of different fabrics in the headboards recalls Venetian traditions while the new door thresholds interpret the preserved pre-existing seeds in a modern key.
