The requalification project of Palazzo Tirso foresees the change of destination from office to hotel.

The inspiration behind the design derives from the history of the territory and from the old configuration of the building, specifically from all the technical elements hidden in the architecture, which become the leitmotif of the new spaces, through the theme of the tubulars.

In terms of colors, both in the rooms than in the common spaces, will be perceived an immersion within the colors related to Sardinian culture, especially to its territory.

For the rooms and suites have been identified 3 color palettes, which allow to make the experience always unique and customizable: the oranges, linked to the orange-pink shades of the sunsets over the Cagliari sea and the flamingos, an animal that has just returned to the city; the blues, linked to the color of the sky and the crystal clear waters of the Golfo degli Angeli; the greens, which refer to the surrounding unspoiled nature.
